Programs

Field-based programs in more than 40 countries worldwide

Step beyond the boundaries of a traditional classroom to analyze the critical issues shaping local communities around the world.

SIT Study Abroad programs grapple with the complexities of critical global issues in specific cultural and geographical contexts or comparatively across several locations.

- Arts, Media, and Social Change
- Development, Urban Studies, and Entrepreneurship
- Global Health
- Multiculturalism, Migration, and Indigenous Peoples
- Natural Resource Management, Biodiversity, and Environmental Policy
- Post-Conflict Transformation
- Social Movements, Education, and Human Rights

SIT offers semester, summer, and academic year programs for undergraduate students in Africa, Asia and the Pacific, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East, as well as comparative programs in multiple locations.

Global Issues

SIT programs are designed to respect the strengths and knowledge of local partners.

Programs assemble an array of contributors—academics, artists, scientists, community activists, entrepreneurs, and indigenous leaders—to expose students to a diversity of perspectives.

SIT students are deeply integrated within host communities—through homestays and other appropriate accommodations—and explore issues from the perspectives of the people who live there.

Students examine the ethics of their research and its impact on local communities and are encouraged to consider issues of power, privilege, and inequality from myriad perspectives.

SIT is deeply embedded in local communities around the world; students benefit from SIT's long-standing relationships with in-country networks and partners.

Social Justice

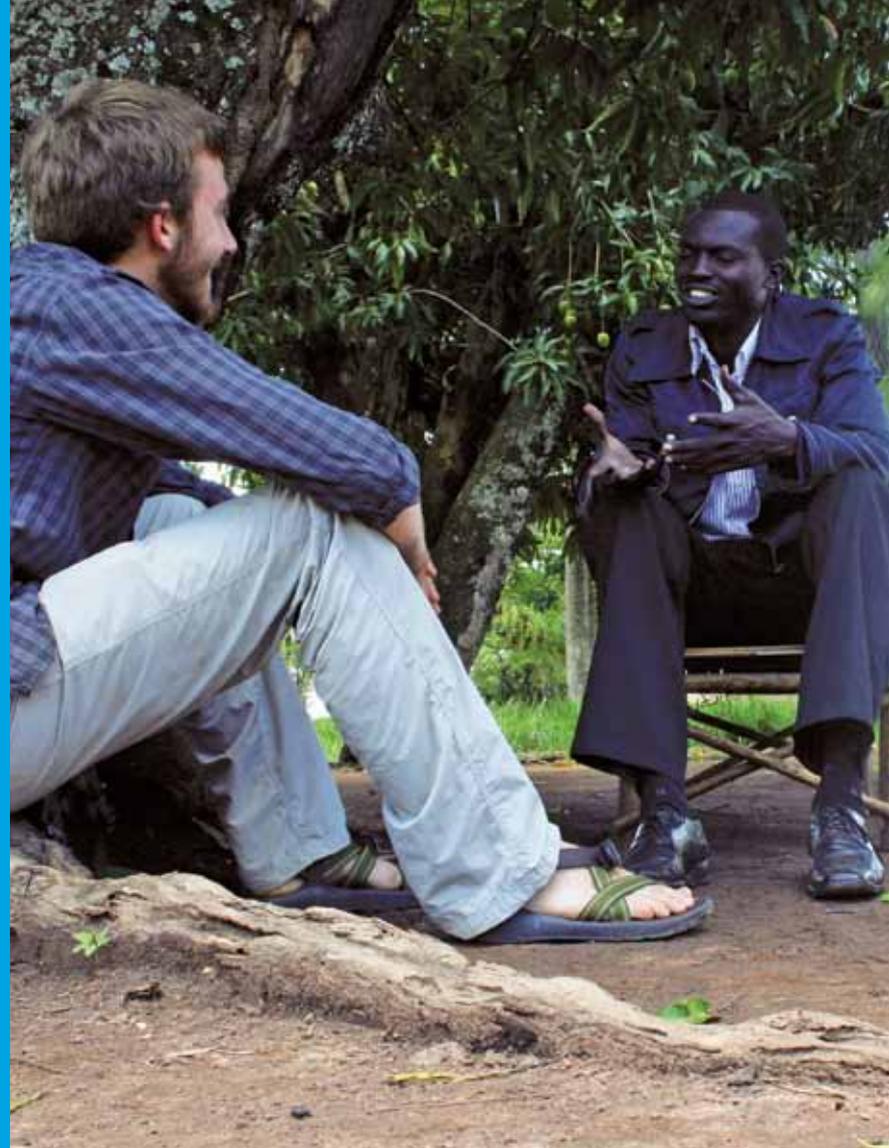

SIT fosters experiential learning, community engagement, and an emphasis on field-based research.

The SIT curriculum incorporates classroom instruction and fieldwork into each course. Courses—including interdisciplinary seminars, language study, and research methods and ethics—are complementary and build toward a greater understanding of the host culture and program theme.

Learning extends far beyond the SIT program center to host communities, field stations, professional associations, ecological sites, health clinics, and art studios.

SIT students are prepared to deeply engage with a topic and complete an in-depth, field-based project. Projects take the form of research papers, oral histories, case studies, in-depth practica, community service projects, artist presentations, and full-length feature stories.

SIT research projects regularly form the basis for senior theses, Fulbright and Watson topics, grant proposals, graduate-level research, fellowships, and professional successes.

Field Research

Choose from among 75+ programs in more than 40 countries worldwide.

Program sites provide the geographical and cultural context in which students examine critical issues with transnational dimensions. Comparative programs offer students the opportunity to investigate significant global issues in at least three countries. While program themes provide a central focus for classroom and field study, all SIT programs are interdisciplinary in nature and are appropriate for a wide variety of undergraduate majors.

Intensive language study in nearly 30 languages

SIT Study Abroad regards language study as an important tool for understanding local perspectives. Many SIT programs offer the opportunity to continue language study at intermediate and advanced levels; select programs are taught entirely or partly in the target language. Other programs provide beginning instruction in a less commonly taught language spoken by a local community.

NEXT STEPS

SIT Study Abroad is committed to helping students from diverse backgrounds experience field-based international education. Here's how to get started.

1

Find a program:

Visit www.sit.edu for complete program descriptions and course syllabi.

2

Talk to your advisors: Visit your home college's study abroad office and meet with your academic advisor.

3

Apply: Our application is online at www.sit.edu/apply.
Questions about applying? Contact the SIT Study Abroad admissions office: studyabroad@sit.edu, 888 272-7881 (toll-free in the US), or 802 258-3212.

Financial aid and scholarships: Talk to your home college's financial aid office. Most colleges facilitate the transfer of federal and state financial aid, and in some cases institutional aid, for study abroad. Visit www.sit.edu/scholarships to learn about SIT scholarships and other funding opportunities.

Apply online at www.sit.edu/apply.

SIT Scholarships

SIT Study Abroad awards approximately $750,000 in scholarships per year. Applying is easy. More than 80 percent of students who complete the scholarship application process receive an SIT scholarship or grant.

Safety, Health, and Security

SIT Study Abroad places the highest priority on the health, safety, and security of all students, and SIT's Office of Student Affairs is available 24 hours a day at 802 258-3212 or 888 272-7881. Building on long experience with risk assessment and emergency preparedness, and utilizing extensive global networks, SIT is able to adapt quickly to dynamic situations and tailors health, safety, and security measures to each location and circumstance. Safety cannot, of course, be guaranteed abroad, just as it cannot be guaranteed in the United States. However, SIT is committed to taking the necessary steps to maximize student safety and security at each and every program site.

SIT Mission

SIT prepares students to be interculturally effective leaders, professionals, and citizens. In so doing, SIT fosters a worldwide network of individuals and organizations committed to responsible global citizenship. SIT fulfills this mission with field-based academic study abroad programs for undergraduates and accredited master's degrees and certificate programs for graduates and professionals.
