

SIT Study Abroad Partnership Council

The SIT Study Abroad Partnership Council provides additional perspectives and expertise on the design, delivery, and assessment of its field-based programs and their integration into undergraduate curricula. The Partnership Council, comprised of 15 deans and directors in the study abroad field from a variety of U.S. colleges and universities, helps SIT strengthen relationships within the study abroad field as it undertakes new projects and initiatives.

The Partnership Council meets twice a year and continues its work electronically throughout the year. The Partnership Council terms of service last three years.

Current members include:

- Mark Beirn, Director of Study Abroad, Tulane University
- Susan Holme Brick, Director, Off-Campus Studies, Whitman College
- Kendall Brostuen, Director of International Programs, Associate Dean of the College, Brown University
- Patti Brown, Associate Dean for International Programs, Franklin & Marshall College
- Jeffrey W. Cason, PhD, Dean of International Programs, Knox Professor of International Studies and Politics, Middlebury College
- Mary Ryan Dando, Director, Study Abroad Programs, University of Colorado, Boulder
- Carol Fairweather, Director, Study Abroad Programs, University of Denver
- Rob Hallworth, Director, Office for Study Abroad, George Washington University
- Martha Johnson, Director, Learning Abroad Center, Office of International Programs, University of Minnesota
- Helena Kaufman, PhD, Director of Off-Campus Studies, Carleton College
- Andrew Law, PhD, Director of International and Off-Campus Study, Denison University
- Minnie Battle Mayes, Director, Office of International Programs, North Carolina Agricultural & Technical State University
- Susan Popko, Director of International Programs, Occidental College
- Carolyn Sorkin, PhD, Director, Office of International Studies, Wesleyan University
- Ana Maria J. Wiseman, PhD, Dean of International Programs, Wofford College