a program of World Learning

About the Evaluations

At the end of each program, all students are required to complete an anonymous online evaluation, a summary of which is presented below. Student evaluations address critical topics including pre-departure material and assistance, orientation, homestays, course content, and overall academic quality.

Student evaluations have long been an important component of SIT's program assessment process. Student feedback helps us identify program strengths and weaknesses in order to maintain high quality academic programs. Evaluations can also help students, faculty, and study abroad advisors identify programs well suited to a particular student's academic objectives and personal interests.

Please keep in mind that programs develop and change over time to reflect updated curricula and evolving realities in the program location. Individual experience can be shaped by a number of factors including group dynamics and student interest and initiative.
